The State Railroad Commission's Depot Order Placed With the Attorney General to Enforce

The Dahl-Millikan Company Branch of The Midland Grocery Company Again Takes Affirmative Action, and Upon Its Application the Railroad Commission Places Order in Hands of Proper Authorities for Enforcement.

ACTION IS PROMISED

May Experience Some Difficulty in Bringing D. T. & I. to Time, as Its Affairs Are in the Hands of the Federal Court--C. H. & D., However, Is in Situation to Be Made to Dance.

Upon failure of the State Railway Commission to bring the C. H. & D. and D. T. & I. railroads to time in the construction of new depots in this city as the Commission ordered upon complaint of the Dahl-Millikan Company, the railroad Commission has turned the matter over to Attorney General Hogan with instructions to proceed in carrying out the decree of the commission, and Attorney General Hogan has stated that he will take the complaint up within a short time and act upon it.

This follows the failure of both roads to comply with the State Railroad Commission's order to erect new depots at this point, the D. T. & I. to have a new freight and passenger depot erected by May 15th, and the C. H. & D. to have a new freight house constructed by the first day of this month.

It is said that Attorney General Hogan has given assurance that he will let no grass grow under his feet in giving the citizens of Washington what has been asked for by the largest business house located here. It will probably be much easier to compel the C. H. & D. to do the right thing than it will the D. T. & I. as the last named road is in the hands of the United States Court, and an order requiring any considerable expenditure of money would probably be difficult to get through the U. S. court.

However, it may be said that prospects for at least one of the depots, that of the C. H. & D. are still very bright.

The manner in which the C. H. & D. and the B. & O. railroad companies have ignored the rights and the requests of our people and have set at defiance the order of the Railroad Commission of Ohio, has at last aroused the ire of the Commission and positive aggressive action has at last been taken looking to the enforcement of its solemn order.

It is sincerely hoped that the attorney general's office force will move decisively and quickly in this matter so that the people of Washington may know once for all whether or not they have any rights which the railroads are bound to respect and if they have whether there is any power in all the vast machinery of the state government to enforce those rights.

Gorgeous Gown and Robe Worn by Queen Mary On the Occasion of Her Coronation at London.

Photos of gown and robe copyrighted by American Press Association.

The first photographs of Queen Mary's coronation robes have just reached this country. The dress is cut in princess style, the material being deep ivory duchess satin. The embroidery is of gold thread of varying tints, giving a delicate light and shade. The design shows the rose, shamrock and thistle in the form of a tree, tapering toward the waist and widening at the corsage. Around the bottom of the gown are lotus blossoms on a surface of water, emblematical of India and the seas of empire. In front of the gown is the star of India enveloped by the rose, shamrock and thistle design. The queen's train is six yards long and one and a half yards wide, fastened at the shoulders with gold cord. The train is of royal purple velvet lined with ermine, with deep edges overturned forming the hem. On the inner side of the train is embroidered a chain of oak leaves and acorns with medallions of rose, shamrock and thistle at frequent intervals. The queen will also wear this robe at the Indian durbar. The gauze was made in England.

SAVE MOORE FROM DISGRACE

Chief of Weather Bureau Predicted Rain For Event, but Failed to Make Good—All Washington Turns Out to Make President's Silver Wedding Anniversary Society Happening Long to Be Remembered in Capital's History.

Washington, June 20.—It will be many a day before the national capital forgets the silver wedding of President and Mrs. Taft. Everyone, from the most exclusive cavedweller to the newest member of congress, seems willing to admit that the reception was one of the most notable social affairs ever held at the White House.

With the weather absolutely perfect, the White House grounds formed almost into a fairyland, the 5,000 invited guests having the best kind of a time and four times that many interested and enthusiastic spectators standing 20 deep outside the spiked iron fence that surrounds the executive mansion. President Taft as he stood at the head of the receiving line with the first lady of the land did not seem to have a care in the world. He was particularly happy, as he said repeatedly in the course of the evening, that Mrs. Taft, lately not in the best of health, seemed to have won strength for the occasion, and was with him every moment of the time that the thousands of guests were filing by, exchanging handshakes and expressing the hope that they might be spared to be present away off in the future at the Tafts' golden wedding day.

Moore Poor Prophet

Incidentally, it is not at all improbable that President Taft, considering the success of the reception, will issue a ukase increasing the salary of Professor Willis Moore, who makes the government's weather. Moore appeared at the White House early in the day with a long face and delivered the most pessimistic predictions. Everybody at the White House was much worried at the atmospheric outlook, for the day opened gray and dismal, with a wet blanket of fog, so Mr. Moore ran over to brighten things up. After he had talked with the president he told the newspaper men that the "president has only one chance in a hundred of having a garden party." Then he elaborated. The weather, however, brightened up after Professor Moore's visit.

To those entering the White House either from the avenue side or the east carriage entrance there was little beyond a searchlight playing on the fountain in front of the porticoes and a few clusters of lights on the lawn to indicate what awaited them on the spacious grounds in the rear. Back there, though, the scene was beautiful beyond description. All around the outer edge of the acres of level, short-clipped grass within the White House enclosure swung Chinese lanterns of fantastic design, blocks upon blocks of them, barely six inches apart, swaying in the light breeze, and casting their queer shapes and shadows on the lawn. Within the great square of lanterns, every tree, shrub and bush wore a dress of colored light.

For two hours the president stood in line, shaking hands. Mrs. Taft stood up beside the president during the first three-quarters of an hour, and then, at his earnest solicitation, sat down beside him. But she did not seem fatigued in the least, continuing to shake hands with each well-wishing guest and having a welcoming smile for everyone.

Bands Play Continuously.

Throughout the formal part of the reception the Marine band played and the Engineers band played also. The music was practically continuous. Major Archibald Butt, the president's aid, who introduced the swiftly passing thousands to the president and Mrs. Taft, had a hard time making his voice heard.

After the last guests passed under the canopy, President and Mrs. Taft, after walking around the softly shaded lawn, stopping here and there to chat with a friend or greet an acquaintance, went indoors. The Engineers band followed them to the east room to play dance music, and from that time on the reception was informal to a degree. Some of the guests danced, others sought the refreshment tables, but by far the greater number remained out on the lawn in the cool night air, walking around the lantern-marked enclosure or sitting under the illuminated Christmaslike trees.

Aunt Delta Torrey of Milbury, Mass., whose famous plea her nephew Will franklin enjoys above almost anything else eatable seems to have taken Washington by storm. Every time she goes out riding in the White House automobile since her arrival on Sunday, Aunt Delta has been kept busy bowing and smiling to the lifted hats and genial greetings.

Labor Wants Law Tested.

Columbus, O., June 20.—State Shop Inspector Kearns requested Attorney General Hogan today to have the woman's nine-hour workday law tested in the courts. A similar request was made last week by manufacturers. Senator Green of Coshocton, author of the law, while here said he hoped the law would be sustained. He wanted the test case brought as soon as possible.

Big Hail Storm
At Cook Station

Saturday night, upon the 36th anniversary of the most terrific hail storm that ever swept the Cook station neighborhood, another violent hail, rain and wind storm swept over that vicinity, doing great damage to the crops, etc.

The hail storm Saturday night was the worst that has struck the Cook's neighborhood since that of 1875 on the same date, when stones as large as hen eggs fell in such profusion that 24 hours later they could be shoveled up in heaps.

Saturday night the same storm that swept this part of the county, apparently centered at Cook's Station, and hail stones as large as hickory nuts fell for several minutes, beating the corn to ribbons and shattering and beating down the wheat, resulting in great damage.

Among the farmers who lost heavily are Henry Redman, Richard Webb, Chas. Cain, John Downs, Wm. Wardell and others.

W. L. HALL'S NECK BROKEN
FELL FROM CHERRY TREE
DEATH INSTANTANEOUS

A fatal accident occurred at the residence of Milton L. Williams a few miles north of Jeffersonville Saturday morning, when W. L. Hall, aged 63 years, fell from a cherry tree and broke his neck, death being instantaneous.

Mr. Hall, whose home was at Waterloo, Lawrence county, was picking cherries for Mr. Williams, and was in the same tree with him. Mr. Williams' attention was attracted by a noise and he turned in time to see his companion pitch headlong ten feet to the ground, where he lay perfectly still. A hurried examination disclosed that his neck had snapped when he struck the earth.

A Good Scare
For A. B. Rankin
Lost His "Hundred"

In response to a call from Mr. A. B. Rankin, who lives one and one-half miles south of this city on the Chillicothe pike, Chief of Police Devaney hurried to Mr. Rankin's residence Tuesday morning, to unravel the mysterious disappearance of $100 in bills which Mr. Rankin was positive had been stolen from him during the night.

When Chief Devaney arrived the house was torn topsy-turvy in an effort to locate the missing money. Mr. Rankin was positive that he had not lost the bills, and that he had placed them under his pillow before retiring. But he recalled one of the doors being unlocked for a short time, and reached the conclusion that the thief—whom he could almost name—had slipped in, removed "the hundred" from under his pillow, and sneaked out again without disturbing him.

Chief Devaney listened to his story took a careful survey of the surroundings, and told Mr. Rankin that without doubt the money was in the house somewhere.

Another search was started, and Chief Devaney picked up a pillow, gave it a shake and out dropped the missing money, safe and sound. Mr. Rankin was dumbfounded, but highly pleased with the result of the Chief's assistance. He had placed the bills in the pillow instead of under it. Now he vows that he will never again place money where he cannot find it.

Auto Skidded
Dr. McKee Injured

Dr. R. H. McKee, well known in this city and a brother of Mrs. Ed Scoggins, and Billy Summers, both of Bainbridge had a narrow escape from being killed on Saturday afternoon. They were on their way home in an automobile from Bourneville, where the doctor had made a call and when within two miles of Bainbridge where there is a large filled road, Dr. McKee attempted to drive past a heavy wagon in the road. Owing to the wet pike the machine skidded, went down the hill and turned over.

Dr. McKee had some ribs fractured and his right arm hurt and Mr. Summers had his left arm broken. Both men were badly bruised, but thankful they are still alive. The top of the car was wrecked and other parts of it were badly damaged.

Low Awnings
Cause Complaint

A number of awnings in this city are, when lowered as far as possible, much too low for the average pedestrian, and consequently a number of persons have sustained bad bumps by striking the steel rods with their heads.

An owner of an awning is responsible for damage to the public, and an ordinance provides for the non-obstruction of the sidewalks, hence a more careful observance of the law might save a damage suit as some of the awnings are entirely too low.

Phloxes Are Striking.
The varieties of phlox which grow in a season are suitable for the amateur who wishes to produce a striking effect in her garden. There are so many different varieties that any shade desired except yellow may be found. Varieties differ in height, size and shape of blossom. All are of easy culture. The plants should have a sunny position. They grow rapidly and their blooming season is not long, but may be prolonged by giving plenty of moisture and a partial shade.

Sweet Pea Enemies.
Slugs and other pests must be watched for, especially in the evening, when they come out to feed. If put into a ball of strong salt and water they will die very quickly.

If small green or brown flies—aphides—appear on the plants, spray them at once with soft soap and water and kerosene or with some insecticide. Syringe the plants with clear water the next day, and spray them again and again, if necessary, till all the aphides are destroyed.

REMAINS OF MAJOR COOK LAID TO FINAL REST WITH APPROPRIATE SERVICE

Rev. T. W. Locke, of Grace church, conducted funeral services of simple impressiveness over all that was mortal of Major James F. Cook, at the battle of Stone River and after home of his daughter, Mrs. George Adams, Monday afternoon.

In the morning the ladies of the G. A. R. held their beautiful flag service and placed upon the quiet sleeper the flag which symbolized his loyal devotion to the country in its hours of stress.

There was a large representation of G. A. R. men, as well as business men of the city and many from out-of-town, as well as family friends assembled at the home for the funeral.

Rev. Locke read the hymn, "Lead Kindly Light" and followed the reading of the obituary with a brief appreciation, in which he paid special tribute to the valor of Major Cook's army record, his high standards in moral issues and his utter devotion to his children and grand-children.

OBITUARY.

Major James F. Cook, was born near White Oak, Madison township, Fayette county, Ohio, on the 19th day of October, 1834, and died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Adams, on the 16th day of June, 1911, at the advanced age of twenty-six years, seven months and twenty-nine days. He was a son of Isaac T. and Elizabeth Lewis Cook, who in 1804 emigrated from Virginia to Ross county, and removed from Ross county to this county in 1814, and settled in what is still called the Cook neighborhood near White Oak.

Isaac T. Cook and family were among the earliest pioneers of the county and were well known far and near among the early settlers for their hospitality and sterling qualities of character, and were prominent in the early development of the county.

Major Cook spent his early life upon the farm near where he was born. He had the advantage of only a common school education supplemented by a few months' attendance at what in that day was known as the Bloomingburg Academy.

On the 20th day of January, 1864, he was united in marriage with Mary Augusta Myers, who was a daughter of Hon. John L. Myers, a former representative of this county. There was born to this union two daughters and three sons: Elizabeth Lewis Cook, who is deceased; Mrs. Kate M. Adams, of this city; Isaac T. Cook; James F. Cook and John W. Cook, all residents and prominent business men of the city of St. Louis, Mo.

His wife Mary, died on the 24th day of April, 1886, after more than thirty years of happy married life. Her death was a great bereavement to him. He was a devoted husband, a kind and indulgent father, who had great solicitude for the welfare of his children, that they might become successful and well situated in life.

For many years he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Adams, of this city, spending a few months of each year with his sons in St. Louis. His children have shown their father great kindness and attention in his declining years. He took great pleasure and interest in his grandchildren, whom he dearly loved and to whom he was greatly devoted.

Mother told pop the other day that she thought you were living a double life." — Youngstown Telegram.

Major Cook has been a member of the Masonic Fraternity at Mt. Sterling, Ohio, for more than forty years. He never united with any branch of the Christian church, but was a believer in the essential principles of Christianity. He lived a clean, pure and upright life. He had a high regard of citizenship and was a good citizen.

Even a brief sketch of the life of Major Cook would not be complete without reference to his military service. Soon after the outbreak of the Civil War, and Pres. Lincoln's first call for troops, he enlisted in the ninety day service as a private and later re-enlisted in the 90th O. V. I. and continued in the service until the close of the war. He was commissioned as First Lieutenant of Co. K. of his regiment. He was promoted from time to time for meritorious service in battle, when in 1865 he was commissioned as major of his regiment. His regiment belonged to Cruft's brigade, Palmer's division of the army of the Cumberland, commanded by Gen. George H. Thomas.

But few men endured more hardships and privations during the Civil War than Major Cook. He participated in many of the great battles of that conflict. Among them that of Perryville, Stone River, Chickamauga, Dallas, Desaca, Kenesaw Mountain, Atlanta, Jonesborough, Franklin and Nashville. He was captured at the battle of Stone River and after six months of prison life in Libby Prison, was exchanged for a Confederate officer of equal rank. When he was liberated from that most deatable of prison pens of starvation and death, he was a mere skeleton weighing about one hundred pounds. But his patriotism and love for the old flag was not lessened by the hardships he had endured, and he resolved to again join his old regiment.

Here a beautiful and touching incident occurred in the life of Major Cook, which his extreme modesty forbade him to rarely ever mention even to his most intimate friends, that Mrs. Lucy Hayes, wife of President Hayes, who was a cousin of his, presented him with a beautiful sword which he carried through the remainder of the war, which he prized so dearly and which is now in possession of deceased's family and will ever be cherished as a precious heirloom.

He was frequently complimented by his superior officers for several acts of courage and bravery in battle, particularly so in his leading a successful charge at the battle of Chickamauga. He was mustered out of service at Camp Barker, Tenn., on June 13, 1865. He then returned to civil life on the old farm having the right to feel that he had done his share for a country boy, in upholding the supremacy of the laws and the constitution of his country.

Major Cook in 1880 was elected Sheriff of his county and was re-elected to the same office in 1882, filling the office for two consecutive terms with signal ability to the entire satisfaction of the people. He had a distinguished personal appearance and military bearing, which made him an ideal sheriff and he was very popular with the judges of the courts and the members of the bar.

Later he was elected for two consecutive terms as county treasurer.

In the administration of the office of treasurer he was conscientious and honest and was a great favorite with the people. In 1892 he was again elected sheriff of Fayette county, and during this term of office there came a trying condition in the discharge of his duties that had never before befallen any sheriff of Fayette county.

He bravely did what was his duty under his oath of office, but received criticism from many quarters.

Now, however, there are few, if any, but who will agree that his motives were pure, that he acted in good faith and in the honest discharge of his official duties as an executive officer.

He had an exalted sense of duty as sheriff of upholding and maintaining the majesty of the law.

And today as the mortal remains of Major Cook are borne to our beautiful cemetery of the dead, his children and grand-children will feel the loss of a kind and indulgent father and grandfather, his many friends and the community at large, that a man of marked personality, intense patriotism, loyal and true in his friendship, has passed from our view.

— one who had much to do with the development of the county and the making of its history.

A long line of carriages followed those that bore the sons and daughter to the cemetery for the interment in the family lot.

The flowers were magnificent, the Masons of Mt. Sterling, of which lodge Major Cook had been a member, sending down a representative body with their floral emblem, and special designs from the W. R. C. and the colored citizens. In addition to those sent by relatives and personal friends in St. Louis, Mo., and in this city.

DRY FARMING CONGRESS.

In the city of Colorado Springs, on October sixteenth to twentieth, there will be held the sixth International Dry Farming Congress and at the same time and in connection therewith there will be held an exposition of dry farming products.

Dry farming is a term which sounds strange indeed to the people of this section, where the problem of water supply is not the chief one with which the farmers have to contend, and where in fact the water supply may be counted on as one of the certainties.

This dry farming congress and dry farming products exposition is a getting together of men, scientific and practical, from all the nations of the globe to discuss the problem of reclaiming the desert lands and making them bear their share of the burden of producing crops for the use of man.

To the south and west of the great state of Colorado and reaching well into her borders, stretches the vast American desert which has never yet been made to yield anything for man.

Can it be put to work?

Can similar vast stretches of arid desert lands be put to work?

If so, how can it be done?

These are the questions which these men will ponder and seek to answer.

Many have long believed that in the vast stretches of arid lands, nature has simply provided an immense reserve fund of land, which would, in due time, be turned over to man; that sooner or later when the increase in population demanded it, man would be given the ability to understand just how to use this land. Few indeed have believed that economical nature had thrown these vast stretches of land away.

Now man has begun the task in earnest and the question which seems apparently incapable of solution by him, is to be taken up.

The chief executives of all nations; the ministers or secretaries of agriculture, the governors of states or provinces, the diplomatic representatives of nations, the presidents of agricultural colleges, the Federal or State directors of agriculture, state land boards, state boards of agriculture; national, state or local agricultural societies, granges or other similar bodies, seed breeding associations, live stock associations, horticultural societies, national, state or local educational societies interested in agriculture, county commissioners, mayors of cities or presidents of towns, commercial bodies or grain exchanges, transportation lines and members of The Dry Farming Congress are invited to participate, personally or by properly accredited delegates.

The work of this great co-operative Congress is, and those invited are urged to consider it of the utmost commercial and social importance to every country, commonwealth and associates.

The program will be devoted to discussing plans for rapid enlargement of the necessary agricultural educational propaganda; co-operative work between nation, state and farmer in developing a higher type of methods and production; exchanging reports between nations, state and farmers, as to methods of overcoming problems in the conservation of moisture, soil fertility and of breeding more drought resisting plants and fruits; studying the rebuilding of soils and overcoming of diseases of plant life, trees and soils; enlargement of experimental methods; national and state legislation affecting the farmer from the standpoint of development and methods; immigration; the interests of the homesteader, etc.

DESIRE FOR A CHANGE.

Perhaps in no city has socialism grown more rapidly than it has in Berlin, Germany.

The Prussian diet, or congress, has passed the Greater Berlin bill, as it is called, allowing the annexation of additional territory and thereby greatly increasing the size of the city. The population of Berlin, in fact, will now be about three and a half million, and thus place the city third in population of the cities of the earth. Heretofore it has been some smaller than Chicago.

But the object of the bill was not solely to increase the size of Berlin that it might stand third in the list. It was a political move, pure and simple, and was made to overcome the present influence of the Socialists in the city's law making body.

At this time the Socialists are in the ascendancy in Berlin, or so nearly so, and growing so rapidly, that it is a question of but a short time until they control municipal affairs. By annexing additional territory where the Socialists are not strong, and giving the newly created districts a large representation in the city council—as it would be called in this country—the influence of the Socialists will be overcome—for the present at least. Socialism is making greater gains in Germany than in any other country, and the emperor is thoroughly aroused. He sees their gain delegates month after month, and he has sense enough to know that it is going to require a lot of diplomacy upon the part of the government to overcome the trend of affairs. He does not of course believe that enlarging the boundary lines of Berlin will stop the spread of the doctrine, but he does believe that it will suffice to hold the Socialists in check until the growth of theory can be successfully combated.

POETRY FOR TODAY

EXPLANATIONS.

Saith one little raindrop
To the other: "Pray,
Wherefore art thou weeping?
Why not bright and gay?"

Saith the other little raindrop:
"I've been deceiv'd.
For my love hath left me—

"With another maiden
He has gone from me—
That is why I'm weeping;
Happy never I'll be!"

"Now that I have told you,
Pray, why weepest thou?
Has thou not a sweetheart?
Why that furrow'd brow?"

Saith the first small raindrop:
"I've cause tears to shed—
I am 'tother maiden
With whom he has fled."

Selfishness is the suicide of happiness.

The divine is not discovered by definition.

Virtue is the moral fiber that comes from soul struggle.

Thinking bitterly of others strikes a blow at my own heart.

He who spreads himself in prayer is not likely to rise in it.

People who practice duplicity naturally label it diplomacy.

Horse and Man; Fellow Laborers

OUT there in the street is a horse that looks just like I feel. Do not imagine that he is a carriage horse, champing the bit and pawing the ground, or a saddle horse ready for a trot, for he is neither. He is a meek, subdued beast of burden, attached to a wagon filled with broken limestone. A laborer is standing thereon hurling the rocks to the street. The horse meanwhile waits, unmoved, unmovable.

When the wagon is unloaded the laborer will gather up the loose reins and drive slowly to the barns. A bag of oats, a manger full of hay, and a bed of straw in a narrow stall is the reward of the dray horse's labor. The morrow will be like today. He will haul the stones, and wait, be driven home and rest. He is a part of a system like myself. He dares not have an individuality or a personal purpose. Of what use for him to shake the heavy yoke from his neck and gallop down the street?

Even were it possible to gallop hitched to a heavy stone wagon, the feet were useless. He would be whipt for a runaway brute. Was there ever a time when green fields were the pasture lands of this dray horse, and a hillside meadow his bed? Was there ever a brook for him to wade in, or a beech tree to shelter him? Was there ever a wide prairie to canter across? Did he ever look up to the sky or shake his mane or whinny? How subdued he has become! Poor dray horse, lost in the progress of civilization! Poor laborer, driving the dray horse—beast driving beast, blinded leading the blinded!

If the laborer were to look up to my window he would envy me. He does not know that I, too, have been driven all day, that my brain whirls, that I am breathlessly tired, that I am a link in the endless chain. I have watched the laborer for many days and I think he has watched me as I have passed out of my house. I have fancied that he has resented my little better dress and seemingly easier tasks. And at night I have dragged myself to this window to watch my fellow dray horse in the street.

Would it be any comfort, Mr. Laborer and Mr. Dray Horse, to know that the person who looks down from the respectably curtained windows is as tired and subdued as you are; that this person wears a yoke and is hitched to responsibilities as heavy as the stone wagon?

There is a rumble of wheels in the street. The dray horse is dragging himself home. Well, at least there is a bag of oats and a stall full of straw and the laborer and I have a dinner and a bed coming to us.

Our Grocery Clerk Says Worse'n Worse

Say, every single hit I try to make with Juliet is a foul, and that's no rank decision. No matter what I do, it's wrong.

The frigid cashier was out to lunch today, when a big guy with freckles all over his oily mug comes in and inquires for her. I'm not naturally jealous and understand but when a nut like that breeze in and asks for the girl that's been turning me down to the past month or so, I'm liable to get kinda peeved. But I just told her she was out.

When Juliet came back I informed her a fellow had been in for her. What was he like, she wanted to know.

Well, in the interest of truth, I told her he was like a bad case of dyspepsia, and then some. I wouldn't be like him for a million dollar, I told her, and then went on to describe him.

"You are speaking of my brother," she says, and I wanted the floor to crack and swallow me up. Hand me a stiff one and put me to sleep for about eight years, will you?"

NO END TO COURSE.

"It looks very much like De Trow remarked, 'as the lecture habit was becoming popular once more.'

"It has never lost its popularity at our home," Henry Peck said, gloomily.

Common Profanity.

"I'll be deviled!" said the ham.

"I'll be swatted!" said the train.

"I'll be darned!" said the sock.

"I'll be stumped!" said the tree.

"I'll be blown!" said the horn.

"I'll be hanged!" said the picture.

"I'll be damned!" said the stream.

BEFORE LONG.

John, the janitor's son, whipped Jimmie, today."

"Well, that's no great calamity. Suppose Jimmie had whipped the janitor's son?"

PROTECTION.

"My husband is a mean man."

"Why so?"

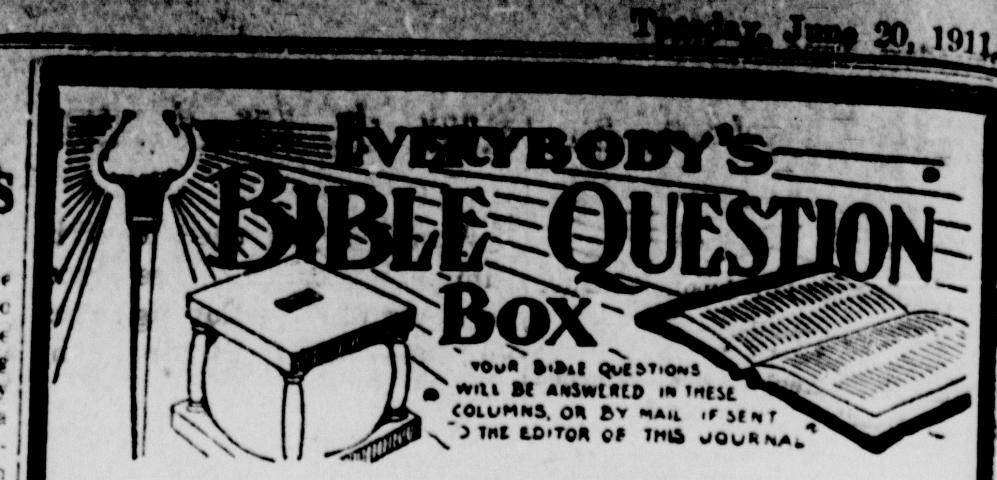

"Just because my mother is coming to visit us he's gone and invited her."

201.—In Revelation xx, 1-3, we read that Satan is to be bound a thousand years; does this mean that he is to be bound with a literal chain?

Answer.—The entire book of Revelation is symbolic, figurative. The woman, wonderful beasts, voices, thunders, lightnings, etc., are figurative illustrations of great truths. So with the chain that is to bind Satan. It will not be a chain of iron or gold, but his binding will be a Divine restraint of his evil power. Satan has been deceiving the nations and peoples for centuries past, but during the thousand years of his restraint "he will deceive the nations no more until the thousand years be ended." During the period of his restraint "the knowledge of the glory of the Lord will fill the whole earth as the waters cover the deep" (Habakkuk ii, 14). During that time the works of the devil will be destroyed. "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil" (1 John iii, 8). Then the way to righteousness will be made so plain that even a fool need not go astray therein.

DETECTIVE WM. BURNS AND ERECTORS AT OUTS DISAGREE ON PROCEDURE

Kidnapping Charge Against the Famous Sleuth in Indianapolis and the Discharge of Alleged Accomplices Causes Trial Judge to Order Another Investigation.

SLEUTH ORDERED INTO COURT

Indianapolis, Ind., June 20.—In the criminal court Judge Harvey made an order that J. A. G. Baker and Walter Eaves of the National Erectors' association, Assistant District Attorneys Ford of Los Angeles and Frank P. Fox, who drove the automobile that carried John J. McNamara from Indianapolis, were discharged on the charge of kidnapping. McNamara was recommended by the grand jury, shall be held under seal for further investigation. The state wishes to examine the evidence presented to the grand jury concerning the kidnapping charges against the men. It is possible that some of the grand juries may consider no action in discharging the men named.

The court has also ordered all bondsman to remain before the court in court on July 15 or forfeit a bond of $10,000. Burns is going to Europe. It is claimed that Burns has the jurisdiction of the court without leave.

Indiana Wants First Chance.

The possibility has arisen that an effort may be made through Prosecutor Baker to have John G. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the iron workers' organization, surrendered at once by the California authorities and brought back to Indianapolis to be tried on the local indictment charging him with conspiracy to bring about dynamite explosions at Peoria, Ill.

A disagreement is said to have arisen since McNamara's arrest between Detective Burns and the Erectors' association concerning the course to be taken in the prosecution of McNamara. It is averred that Burns is interested in prosecuting McNamara in the Los Angeles Times case, while the Erectors' association wishes to prosecute McNamara on the charge that he helped to dynamite structural works in which that association is interested. McNamara's friends say they have reason to believe the Los Angeles authorities have little evidence against McNamara in the case of the Times explosion, and that they might be willing to give him up to answer to other charges.

Death In Auto Wreck

Cleveland Man Hurled From Car When It Hits Guy Wire.

Goshen, Ind., June 20.—G. E. Delafontaine, 32, of Cleveland, vice president of the Chicago Motorcar company, was killed in Dunlap, a small town midway between Goshen and Elkhart. He and H. A. Allen and E. C. Patterson left Chicago for Cleveland in an auto. The machine hit a turn at a high rate of speed and skidded, striking the guy wire of a telegraph pole. Patterson and Allen kept their seats, but Delafontaine was hurled headlong from the car and struck the pole. His skull was fractured, his neck broken and his chest crushed.

The Senate Employee Loses Fight to Un- seat Judge Kin- head

Charged With Aiding Andrews
In the Solicitation of a Bribe.

JUDGE DECLARED TO BE FAIR

Presiding Judge Goldsberry of Columbus District Says That If Favors Were Shown In Nye Trial Court Went Out of Way to Help Defense Additional Subpoenas Issued, One Being For Foreman of Grand Jury That Returned Indictments.

Columbus, O., June 20.—Rodney J. Diesel, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, indicted on a charge of aiding Senator L. R. Andrews in the solicitation of a bribe from Detective P. S. Harrison, began in criminal court this morning before Judge E. B. Kinhead. This is the first of the dictaphone cases to be tried. Diesel is also under indictment on the same charge with Senators Cetone and Huffman.

In addition to the 10 state senators, a congressman and other prominent men for whom subpoenas were issued last week, the Diesel defense issued subpoenas for David R. Major, foreman of the grand jury which returned all the bribery indictments; Charles J. Pretzman who was attorney for the Burns detectives and Senator John A. Stockwell of Cleveland, progressive leader in the senate.

Judge John W. He said the rulings in the Nye trial which favored one side or the other balanced about evenly, and in some instances the court went out of his way to help the defense out of a hole.

Mrs. Ardleman Held To Federal Grand Jury Misuse of Mails the Charge

United States Commissioner Alexander Johnson Releases Her on $1000 Bond and Exacts Promise That She Will Remain Away From Man to Whom She Is Charged With Addressing a Letter Which Resulted in Her Arrest.

A REMARKABLE CASE

Facts Prove Stranger Than Fiction and the Puzzling Angles Which the Case Persists in Taking Causes Authorities to Brand It as One of the Most Remarkable in This Branch of Federal Courts.

A story that reads more like fiction, or some of the escapades of the idle rich of the big eastern cities, has just come to light, or rather is a new turn in a most peculiar case in which one of the principal characters, Mrs. Viola Ardleman, of Good Hope, and the other two, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gudgeon, are residents of Sabina.

Mrs. Ardleman on Monday of this week, was released from the hands of the Federal authorities, under $1000 bond for sending obscene matter through the mail to Norman Gudgeon, the charge being preferred last fall and a warrant issued at that time for her arrest, but she was not located until last week, when she was found working at the home of Clyde Watts, a Columbus patrolman, and was placed under arrest.

This is but a new feature of an old case in which it is alleged that Mrs. Ardleman has been more sinned against than sinning.

Mrs. Ardleman is 28 years of age, and a comely grass widow, the daughter of James Kisling, of Good Hope, this county. About one year ago she was made defendant in a suit brought by Mrs. Norman Gudgeon, of Sabina, in which Mrs. Gudgeon asked several thousand dollars damage for the alienation of her husband's affections. Mrs. Ardleman had been making her home with the Gudgeons, and all had apparently been going well until the suit was filed.

Notwithstanding the suit, Mrs. Gudgeon still lived with her husband and continues to live with him, apparently in the most peaceful domestic tranquility. Sometime following the suit Mrs. Gudgeon is alleged to have found a letter written to her husband by Mrs. Ardleman, and which is alleged to have been of an obscene nature. Mrs. Gudgeon is said to have placed the letter in the hands of her attorneys, Hays & Hays, who in turn placed it in the hands of Postoffice Inspector Morgan Griswold, and a warrant was issued for Mrs. Ardleman's arrest. The warrant was placed in the hands of a United States marshal, but efforts to locate Mrs. Ardleman proved a failure. The

A Back Water Town.

"It was one of those sleepy, one-horse backwater towns like Squash," said Representative Burton, describing at a Hot Springs dinner a town that he disliked.

"Squash is the limit. A gentleman arrived there the other day and wanted a haircut. He found the barber shop, and, after shaking the barber vigorously, managed to awaken him.

"How long will it take you to cut my hair, barber?" he asked.

"Not long," said the barber.

"And he rose, yawned and stretched himself. Then he called upstairs to his wife.

"Hey, send the kid down to the newspaper office to tell the editor I want my scissors just as soon as he's done editin' the paper. There's a gent here waitin' for a haircut."

William Dillard Case Being Tried

Ninety-two witnesses, including a number from this county, have been subpoenaed to testify in the case of State of Ohio vs. William Dillard, charging him with manslaughter in the memorable pitched battle in Clark county, December 5th, 1910, between the Dillards and Dillons, in which Homer Dillon lost his life. The Dillards are former residents of this county.

It required most of the day to impanel a jury, as most of those called had formed an opinion. Five attorneys are engaged in the trial, three for the defendant and two for the state. Prosecuting Attorney Bell, of Madison county is one of the attorneys for the defendant.

Progress was very slow Monday, and the trial may occupy the entire week. Clifford Dillard, son of William Dillard, and the man who killed Homer Dillon in the affray, was acquitted by the jury in April. Two sons of Mr. Dillard were indicted for the same offense at the same time, and remain to be tried.

The Bug Bible.

The bug Bible was printed in 1549 by the authority of Edward VI, and its curiosity lies in the rendering of the fifth verse of the Ninety-first Psalm, which, as we know, runs, "Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night nor for the arrow which fletch by day," but in the above version it ran, "So thou shalt not need to be afraid of any bugs by night."

Ludicrous as this sounds, it is not etymologically without justification. "Bug" is derived from the Welsh word "bwg," which meant a hobgoblin or terrifying specter, a signification traceable in the word commonly in use today—"bugbear"—and Shakespeare once or twice uses the word in this primary sense, notably when he makes Hamlet say, "Such bugs and goblins in my life."

TAX LEVY ORDINANCE PROVES TO BE A HURDLE TOO BIG TO JUMP OVER

The new tax rate limit law and the multitude of directions, exceptions, limitations and provisos therein contained seems to have the city officials of this city as well as those of practically every other municipality in Ohio guessing as to what their powers and duties are in the matter of the 1911 levy.

Pursuant to law Mayor Allen submitted his annual budget to the City Council and that body acted promptly, referring the document to the Finance Committee and that committee with equal promptness indorsed the budget, approved and recommended that Council levy a five mill tax rate which would produce about $2,146 more than Mayor Allen asked for.

These steps having been taken the Council and the executive officers of the city are face to face with preparing and passing the levy ordinance and the question now arises on procedure.

The ordinance was supposed to be prepared and ready for passage at the Monday night adjourned meeting of Council, but no quorum of Council was present. Consequently no action was taken and every one is considerably up in the air.

City Auditor Pine has addressed the following letter to the Committee on the subject of the levy ordinance.

June 19, 1911.
To the Honorable Finance Committee of the Council of the City of Washington.

Gentlemen:

Your committee requested the City Auditor to furnish them with the necessary information so that the correct mill levy for each fund shall bring into the city an amount equal to the 5 mill levy allowed by law for city purposes and recommended by your committee on June 14th, for the fiscal year 1912.

I have taken into consideration the amount anticipated to stand to the debit or credit of each fund at the end of the present year, and on the basis of the amount of taxable property of $6,387,942, I find that the levy for the funds enumerated below would be necessary.

Sinking fund 2.00 mills
General fund53 mills
Health fund85 mills
Library fund96 mills
Service fund 3.31 mills

These levies together with the balances will be sufficient to meet the expenditures as shown by the mayor's budget.

Should it be the desire of Council to allow the library trustees the $1000 additional, the levy for library should be increased .15 mills.

The service fund, as I am informed by your committee, was to receive the benefit of the difference between the actual necessary levy for all other purposes and the .5 mills levy as you recommend. Therefore you may levy for the service fund 3.31 mills, unless the .15 mills for the library is allowed, then it should be reduced to .16 mills.

As to the legality or the advisability of this levy, I have no comment to make. Respectfully submitted,

GLENN M. PINE,
City Auditor.

There is no denying the fact that a chaotic condition exists all over the state on this subject of the tax levy for 1911 and this city is no exception to the rule.

Whether the levy recommended by counsel's committee must include those for interest and sinking fund purposes, is puzzling the officials, and it is understood that the Attorney General's office will hold that it should. It is another bracer because it was not so considered in the Mayor's budget.

Whether the levy this year can be large enough to produce a greater amount of taxes than was collected in the year 1910, is another stumper. The law in one place seems to so limit the levy. Or whether that limitation is only that the levy this year (1911) shall not produce a greater fund than the maximum rate allowed by law would have produced on the duplicate for the year 1910.

There are all sorts of opinions on this tax rate limit law and it is not to the discredit of any official to acknowledge that the matter is not clear to him.

From the highest to the lowest, throughout the state, the officials are entertaining and expressing widely divergent views and the confusion which promises to grow out of the change in the tax laws will be vexatious to officials and expensive to the public.

For the benefit of the public of this city THE HERALD will endeavor to obtain from men prominent in affairs, an expression of opinion on some of the salient points now in controversy and these opinions will be given to the readers as rapidly as they can be obtained.

GIRL STOLEN BY GYPSIES IN THIS CITY YEARS AGO MARRIED AT CIRCLEVILLE

Miss Bessie A. Burkhardt, aged 17, to whom a marriage license was issued at Circleville yesterday by the consent of her adopted father, Jacob Burkhardt, is the little girl that was found by the police on the streets in that city. The child was a waif and was with a band of gypsies. She claimed that her mother either sold or disposed of her to the gypsies in this city years ago and placed her under the control of George Clayton, who abandoned her at Circleville. She was placed in the Pickaway county Children's Home and afterward adopted by James Burkhardt. The girl is very bright and prepossessing.

The Scotch Juror.

A lawyer once asked a man who had at various times sat on several juries:

"Who influenced you most—the lawyers, the witnesses or the judge?"

He expected to get some useful and interesting information from so experienced a juror. This was the man's reply:

"I tell you, sir, or I makes up my mind, I'm a plain man, and a reasoning man, and I ain't influenced by anything the lawyers say, nor by what the witnesses say—no, nor by what the judge says. I just looks at the man in the dock, and I says, 'If he ain't done nothing, why's he there?' And I brings 'em all in guilty."—Dundee Advertiser.

Miss Marie Cahill in "The Boys and Betty," tells a good story of East Side ideas on the bath question.

"A recently arrived English immigrant mother had a little boy of seven or eight," she said, "whom she sent to school, day after day, in a very unkempt state.

"The teacher finding that to scold the lad for his untidiness had no effect, wrote to the mother. Her son was not clean, she wrote. His neglected condition was really disgraceful. He had, in fact, a quite unpleasant odor. And so on."

"The next morning the boy, as dirty as ever, handed the teacher his note:

"My son ain't no rose. I sent him to school to be learnt, not to be smelt."—Young's Magazine.

Off Guard.

"How did it happen that your friends got the best of you?" queried the inquisitive person.

"They got busy while I was watching my enemies," exclaimed the man who had got the short end of it.

To Remove Dry Paint.

It is very difficult to remove dry paint from a material, yet this is recommended: Hold the article over steam until the paint is softened, then rub with a cloth dipped in kerosene. Repeat this until the steam and kerosene remove the stain or until the paint is weakened so that it can be removed with gasoline. Kerosene will often loosen paint and always without injury to the color. Many recommend hot turpentine, but it might explode, and is very dangerous in the hands of an amateur.

Havemeyer's Friend Defends Business Methods Declares Officials Cowards

Washington, June 20.—The late H. O. Havemeyer's management of the affairs of the American Sugar Refining company was defended before the Hardwick house committee which is investigating the sugar industry, by James H. Post, vice president of the National Refining company of New Jersey.

Mr. Post paid a tribute to the ability, honesty and business acumen of Mr. Havemeyer, and said that the sugar officials who are now appearing before the committee and placing all the responsibility for the conduct of the affairs of the great sugar corporation are cowards.

Mr. Post also told how $10,000,000 worth of common stock was issued to Mr. Havemeyer for his services in organizing the National Sugar Refining company of New Jersey, the nucleus of the present sugar trust, and how $2,500,000 in the form of dividends had been paid to Mr. Havemeyer on this stock, for which not a cent of real money had been paid.

Havana, June 20.—The first human parts to be recovered from the wreck of the American battleship Maine were discovered when workmen removing mud and debris from the spar deck just forward of the after superstructures discovered the blackened and carbon encrusted bones of a left forearm and right foot.

Vaniman Predicts Success.

Akron, O., June 20.—"I will cross the Atlantic ocean in my dirigible balloon in two and a half days, with favorable wind conditions," declared Malvin Vaniman, aviator, on arrival here to complete his craft, which is being constructed at a local rubber plant with finances furnished by Frank Seibering, president of the chamber of commerce of Akron.

Kills Sister by Accident.

Canton, O., June 20.—When young Earl Masters was calling on his sweetheart, Clara Mani, 18, at Massillon, she found a revolver in his pocket and took it away from him, laying it on the table. Her brother, Samuel Mani, 21, returning home, picked up the weapon to examine it, and accidentally shot and killed his sister before young Master's eyes.

Nervy.

"I wanted lump sugar," exclaimed the angry customer as she looked over the packages. "What does that gorilla mean by sending me soft A sugar?"

"Well, laughed the grocer's boy as he moved nearer the door, he said if you don't like it you could lump it."

How it Happened.

"Did you ever find the traditional man under the bed?" queried the spinster.

"Only once," replied the married woman. "We thought we heard burglars downstairs, and a few seconds later I found my husband there."

PRESENT DAY GIRLS USE FEW ADJECTIVES

A GREAT deal is said, from time to time, about the needs of our public schools.

So far as I am able to judge, their most pressing and immediate necessity is a couple of tons of assorted adjectives, and somebody to teach the pupil how to apply them with some kind of discretion in the places where they will do the most good.

It is my happy privilege to be acquainted with a number of young girls who are high school graduates, and to listen to their effervescent conversation. It is vastly entertaining, as well as a liberal education, to sit at the feet of these fledglings, and get their queer, clear, unsophisticated blare, ultra modern views on world-old problems; but beyond the curious blending of infantile ignorance and septuagenarian knowledge, they display the most interesting thing is their utter poverty in the matter of adjectives.

So far as I am able to discover, the young person of today starts out in life with only four. These are, "cute" and "grand" and "swell" and "fierce"; and these are used interchangeably and without any sense of value.

Thus the Flatiron building is cute.

So are the works of art in the Metropolitan Museum. So is Mr. Taft. So is a battleship.

A chocolate soda on the other hand is grand. A chiffon dress is grand. A comic opera is grand. Comedy is grand. Anything and everything is grand that is pleasant and agreeable, but it is just as likely to be so far as I am able to discover, the young person of today starts out in life with only four. These are, "cute" and "grand" and "swell" and "fierce"; and these are used interchangeably and without any sense of value.

As for "sweet," you have, or rather they have, a swell time at a dance, or on an automobile ride, or you have a swell dinner at a restaurant, or you get a swell dress, or have a swell house. Things that cost money are swell when they aren't "grand" or "cute." "Cute" expresses all the gradation of woe from losing all of your nearest relatives to breaking a fan. It also applies to the very quintessence of joy, such as going to the junior Prom, for instance, in a taxi and having a fellow young fop over your date program.

Apparently Miss Sweet-and-Eighteen gets along with perfect comfort to herself, and intelligibility to her equals, on this meagre equipment of adjectives, but to an older person it is very, very sad to see one so poverty-stricken when there are so many beautiful, expressive, delicately appropriate adjectives still left in the dictionary, and to be had for the taking.

One wishes that parents and teachers thought it worth while to provide young people with a more liberal capital of adjectives upon which to do business in life, for the adjective is not only the foundation stone of conversation, it contains within itself the whole of the art of making friends, or enemies.

It isn't what she said, it's the nasty way she said it," complained the hero of Chevalier's song about the man who had insulted him, and many another one of us has felt like voicing the same lamentation over an individual who has given unintentional offense. The trouble was that the unscrupulous individual had merely used the wrong adjective.

For there is one particular adjective that is, to each of us, like a red rag to a mad bull and another before which we melt as wax in the sunshine.

And the art of pleasing consists in knowing how to choose the right one.

What a pleasing sentiment, for example, a stout lad entertains toward the individual who speaks, of her plumpness, and what a burning hatred she feels toward the blunderer who calls her fat! How sweet to the ear of the thin woman to be called slender, willowy, or svelty, and how unforgivably offensive to be told that she is scrawny!

I know of a family feud that had its beginning in a tactless woman, with a limited supply of adjectives, writing to a young mother, who had sent her the picture of a homely baby, that little Johnny appeared to be a nice, healthy child." But the fond mother would have been overjoyed if her correspondent had said that little Johnny was a remarkably interesting child.

What a difference it makes whether you call a snub nose a pug nose, or speak of it as a tipped nose, or a trouser nose.

Who would not be furious at being labeled sallow, and who would not gurgle with delight at being described as having an olive complexion?

What woman would not resent being called ash colored, but beam with joy at being referred to as pale silver blonde?

Yet all these ways of putting it mean the same think. The difference lies in the adjective.

There are those who think that all flattery is a sweet morsel that we roll under our tongues. Perhaps.

But the flavor of it depends on the choice of the adjective. Which one of us has

Bailey to the Front Call for G. O. P. Pledges Against Reciprocity Bill

Washington, June 20.—Senators debated most of the session to a discussion of Canadian reciprocity, during which Senator Root requested that his amendment relating to wood pulp be passed over that it might be debated. The senator from New York announced that he would speak in the senate on the matter tomorrow. Objection was made to passing the amendment by Senator Williams of Mississippi, who later withdrew it. Then a debate ensued over the necessity of expediting the consideration of the bill. Senator Penrose complained because senators were not ready to discuss it, whereupon Senator Bailey declared those senators who opposed the bill were waiting for those who favored it to speak. He said that if Senator Penrose would say that none of the Republicans or Democrats favorable to the bill were prepared to defend it, then its opponents would take up the debate and proceed. The result was a colloquial debate on the merits of the general question, during which Sen-
